

CENTRAL ALBERTA REGIONAL MUSEUMS ASSOCIATION

Founded in 1994, the Central Alberta Regional Museums Association (CARMN) is a cooperative of community-based museums that work together to share knowledge and resources. CARMN strengthens all member museums so that we can better serve our communities. CARMN invites you to step into the past & discover where we came from through the stories and treasures of Alberta's people. Explore the member museums of CARMN and uncover our rich stories, history, and heritage. From open plains to the mountains, parkland through river valleys to the edge of the Palliser triangle, you'll find artifacts, stories, and experiences that reveal how and why people invested their time and energies here. Use CARMN's website to explore details on the many special events, programs, and live demonstrations happening throughout the year, at area museums and historical villages in Central Alberta.

Central Alberta: ASPENLAND

Central Alberta is a picturesque parkland region covering over 50,000 square kilometres. This region's historic name, Aspenland, refers to the trembling aspen or poplar (populus tremuloides) - the dominant tree of the region.

For biologists, the aspen parkland is a transitional zone between the arid grasslands to the south, and the wetter, cooler boreal forests to the north. It marks the zone between foothills and prairie from west to east. It is a uniquely Canadian landscape, also found in parts of Saskatchewan and Manitoba, and is a natural region as well as an ecosystem that has supported human life for up to 11,000 years.

Central Alberta is part of the North American Great Plains and home to the Blackfoot and Cree peoples. Both the Blackfoot and Cree were hunter/gatherer nomadic peoples who followed the migration of the buffalo (bison), their main food source. Today the museums of CARMN are located on Treaty 6 and Treaty 7 territory as well as several Districts of the Métis Nation of Alberta.

Pioneer Acres of Alberta - Irricana

With respect to the settlement of the Province of Alberta, the aspen parkland shaped the kind of agricultural and other economic activity that took place in the region, and also gave a unique flavour to the settlement history.

Central Alberta is characterized by its rich nitrogen composite soils, with the topsoil averaging over 13 inches, and plentiful water. This made it a desirable location for settlement. This settlement, along with our rich mineral deposits, have shaped the economy of the region.

The Central Alberta region has strong rural roots and, as with other parts of the west, has experienced the movement of people from farms to towns. While Red Deer is the region's primary city, Central Alberta is home to a great number of cities, towns, and villages with their own strong identities. This is evident through the number of community museums in the region and their role in preserving historic buildings and artifacts.

Discover this unique region of Alberta through an exploration of the museums of Central Alberta!
